

Friends of the Museum

You can join this organization that was formed in 2012 with three main objectives:

- Preserve and record the history of the Boy Scout program in central North Carolina.
- Acquire Scouting memorabilia for display and preservation.
- Educate the public and Scouting community on the history of Boy Scouts in the Old North State Council.

The Scout Museum at Cherokee Scout Reservation is the primary site for accomplishing these objectives. If you would like to support our efforts, please complete the following form. We need your time, your talents, and your financial support.

Let us know how you would like to contribute.

OLD NORTH STATE COUNCIL

SCOUT MUSEUM

Take a glimpse at Scouting's first 100 years at the Old North State Council Scout Museum located at the Cherokee Scout Reservation near Yanceyville, NC. See displays of old Boy Scout uniforms, patches, publications, and equipment. See the progression of memorabilia through the decades as the Scouting program matured. Learn about the local history of the councils, camps and Order of the Arrow lodges that served central North Carolina.

The museum is open during special activities at camp and by appointment. To schedule an appointment to tour the museum call the ONSC History Committee Chairman at 336-552-3555.

Celebrating 100 Years of Boy Scouts in America

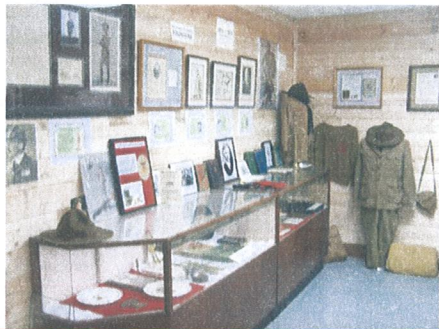

Lord Robert Baden-Powell started the Boy Scout movement in England in 1907. The Boy Scouts of America was incorporated in 1910 under the leadership of William D. Boyce. With the aid of Ernest Thompson Seton, Daniel Carter Beard and James E. West the BSA grew into the country's greatest youth organization. Learn about this rich history.

Above are Boy Scouts in 1911 in Greensboro.

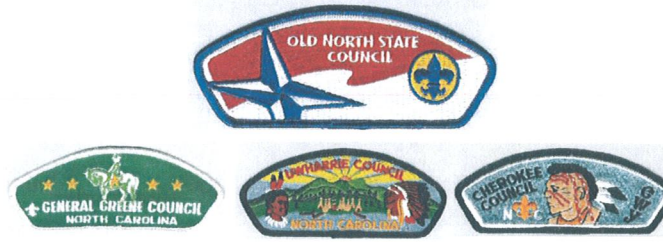

The Boy Scout program spread across the country and throughout North Carolina. The front room of the museum features a timeline of Scouting with items used through the years.

Local History

OLD NORTH STATE COUNCIL

In 1992 General Greene Council in Greensboro and Uwharrie Council headquartered in High Point merged to form the Old North State Council. Cherokee Council which covered Alamance, Rockingham, Person, and Caswell counties joined in '94 to form today's alignment.

Exhibits on each of the former Councils, their camps, and Order of the Arrow lodges are highlighted in the museum's second room.

Most Scouts have fond memories of summers spent at camp. Displays for Camp Graystone, Uwharrie, Cherokee, Wenasa, Nikwasi, Ha-Whi-Ni, Carlson and Hugh Reid Scott fill one wall.

Order of the Arrow

Tsoiotsi Tsogalii Lodge 70

The Old North State Council Scout Museum was constructed through the encouragement and financial support of our local Order of the Arrow lodge, Tsoiotsi Tsogalii. In early 2009 the lodge approved use of the lower level of the Allan "Doc" Lewis Building for the home of a Boy Scout museum. Funds were allocated for construction and with countless volunteer hours contributed, a beautiful space has been created for the display of our local and national Boy Scouting history.

The Order of the Arrow arrived in 1933 in the southeastern United States when Tali Taktaki Lodge 70 was started at Camp Graystone located south of Greensboro. With the addition of Tslagi Lodge 163 in 1939 and Uwharrie Lodge 208 in 1941 a rich history developed. The lodges promoted camping and provided leadership on summer camp staffs. Each summer Scouts were treated to moving ceremonies and developed lasting memories.

The museum has displays on each lodge and on area and national events that they attended.
